VANCOUVER, BC - Small Business Branding, a site aimed at those interested in marketing and building small business, announced it's under new ownership. Vera Raposo, long time brick and mortar business owner turned internet entrepreneur purchased the popular site from Yaro Starak for an undisclosed amount.

"I'm thrilled to be a part of the Small Business Branding website community. We are poised to be the central resource for small businesses with big goals and a laser sharp focus on best practices in sales and marketing," says Raposo, a Vancouver Area resident. "I have plans to expand on Yaro Starak's success and provide small business owners with the content and information they are accustomed to under his leadership."

Small Business Branding provides information to anyone who is interested in marketing and building small businesses through articles, audio, and resources. Website content is contributed by various authors and functions as an online magazine.

Small Business Branding writers possess a strong interest in growing small business and enjoy sharing their experiences and knowledge with other small business owners and aficionados.

Raposo is pleased to bring her own extensive professional experience as an owner/operator of a small business that grew to 5 retail locations to the mix.
